NEW ZEALAND

New Zealand

- New Zealand is an island country that is situated in the south-east of Australia, between the Tasman Sea and the Pacific Ocean.
- It lies on two islands – the north one and the south one.
- The geographical conditions there are very similar to Australia (subtropical climate in the north and mild in the south).

Obr. 1

The Northern Island

- The northern island is smaller but you can find there 70% of the whole population of New Zealand – approximately 4 million.
- The capital Wellington is also located there.
- Tourists go there to admire the environment and natural beauties – mountains, active volcanoes, geysers, glaciers or hot springs.

The Southern Island

- Only minority of the population lives there.
- The dominant of the island is the mountain range called the Southern Alps with the highest peak Mt. Cook (it was named after the discoverer of Australia and New Zealand, Captain James Cook).

Obr. 2
